A RUKOUR was circulated throughout town this morning that the sailing ship Cimbria (egents Meurs, Gilman and Co.) which has been out from New Yo k some four months and twenty days, laden with ke osene oll, has come to gild in the vicinity of the Hainan Straits. It will be remembered that the steamer Chowle. Capi, F. W. Phillips, which arrived here from Banglok on the 31st pltimo, reported having passed hundreds of cases of kerosens oil when en rouls to this port. No positions, however. wert given, but on the previous day Capt. Dayles, of the Oopack, reported that he had passed in lat. 11 20 north and long, 110 40 east, a tack signalling R. V. N. S. (which is the registered code of the Cimbria) and also that she had been damaged by a hurricing. From these feet it may be ssumed that the kerosene cases met with by the Chouse were part of the Cimiria's cargo which had to be thrown overboard owing to stress of weather. And in view of the fact that the Cimbria is so long overdue credesce may be fairly given to the reports current that the vessel has come to grief. the 12th ulto, says :- Despatches from Athens represent the situation in Greece as very serious. Innumuch as the crisis has an important political bearing the resignation of Tricoupis was received with dismay. French and Russian intrigues threaten the stability of the dynasty and it is believed a revolution is not improbable. The enemies of the monarchy claim that the King is individually responsible for the financial situation. Seditious placards have been posted on the walls of Athens, Hatras and other towns accusing the King of conspiring with Jewish financiers to prevent the solution of the crisis, with a view of handing Greece over to foreigners. The placards make a great impression among the ignorant clauses. Shares of the National Bank have fallen over 400 francs in less than a Social changes occur so fast that it is difficult to keep record of them. Last week we lost Mr. F. A. Aglen, head clerk in the Customs, who has been transferred to Canton. Besides being very popular in society, he was one of Amoy's best all round athletes, so that his departure leaves a very noticeable gap in our colony. Commissioner . F. Hughes leaves us this week or next, he having been transferred to Newchwang; this change will also be greatly felt, as Mr. Hughes and his charming wie have been society leaders for many years. He carries with him the universal esteem and regard of both the community at large and the officers of the Customs. North of the residence of the Harbor Master of Amoy on the island of Kulangsu is an ancient graveyard, which seems unknown to the European residents of that place. Nevertheless it is of great antiquarian interest. Among the different types of graves and tombs are Chinese, Tartar Japanese, Maley, English, Spanish and Ma-

A tragedy is mutely told by a plain tomb to memory of "C. C. Chamberlain, Robert Browning and Allen Shirley, who were murdered by Chinese pirates in Quemoy Bay, 5 February,

The graves led one to i fer that there was considerable British commerce with Amoy as early as 1700, and that the current belief that Portugal and Holland monopolized the trade then is without any reasonable foundation. It seems a plty that no European should take an interest in this decayed God's-acre and that the evidences of British thrift and enterprise in long-forgotten years should be allowed to pass into decay.

Lord Sandburst and the Mabarajah of Kuperthals, Sir Albert Rollit, who presided, proposed the toast of the distinguished guest, Lord Roberts, and said that the Empire was safe with such Generals and with such Allies as the Maharajah of Kuperthala. Lord Roberts, in reply, testified to the readiness of the Indians to defend the Empire and enlogised the services rendered alike by Civilians and Soldiers in India. The Mabarsish of Kuperthals, who on rising to reply on behalf of India, received an immense ovation, spoke warmly of the welcome he had received from the Queen Empress, and from the inhabitants of Great Britain wherever he had been. His Highness said he was convinced that the Indians, to a man, would defend the Queen. The Indians, he added, loved Lord Roberts with andying love, and if he ever returned to a higher messenger of peace and prosperity. Lord Roberts in his speech at the London Chamber of Commerce banquet also dwelt on the commercial importance of convincing the natives of India of the permanence of British rule. This feeling, he said, did, not generally exist, and should be fostered by an impartial and sympathetic policy towards the natives, and by an efficient army and defence works ; and also by the Naval and Military organization of England: thus enabling India to be rapidly reinforced should it be found necessary.
